When you think about astrology, you might think about future tellers, psychics and mainly all types of imposters, but astrology in itself is a science that involves complicated mathematical calculations based on astrological positions of various planets and stars at that given point in time. Before the introduction computers, astrologers were used to calculating huge numbers and other data for hours and maybe even days to get the right kind of prediction. There are many ways to deduce conclusions using astrology and all of them have been used all over the world by various astrologers for centuries.
